PET INSURANCE

Our practice strongly advises that you seriously consider insuring your pet.

Of course like any insurance if you don't need to claim you wonder if it is worth paying the premiums but as soon as you pet suffers an accident or illness it is wonderful to know that you will be able to allow your pet to receive the best possible treatments available regardless of cost.

Remember some surgical operations can quickly reach bills of hundreds of pounds, and with the cost of modern drugs being high the treatment of medical complaints can easily climb over the excess payment.

Consider also the patient with an ongoing problem such as arthritis. Modern treatments can really help but over the years incur large costs.

The owner of an insured pet need not worry but remember do take out insurance before any problems develop as the companies will not cover existing conditions.

For peace of mind ask the nursing staff for more information and their advice on policies that we recommend.
